WE NOMINATE

James Joseph Reed, who in the midst of his 30th summer as a Princetonian is about to undertake one of the most challenging assignments of 1959 in the field of amateur sport—the direction of the U. S. Olympic Soccer Team that will represent this country in the Pan-American Games in late August. Marking the first time that American Olympians have been assembled a full year prior to the start of Olympic competition, Coach Reed and his 18-man squad have been given the task of raising this country's lowly standing in a sport which, throughout the world, literally counts its devotees by the hundreds of thousands.

An Olympic wrestler in 1928 and an active member of Olympic Committees in the 1950's, the 55-year old Reed looks upon the Pan-American Games, starting August 27th, as an international testing-ground for his team, or the equivalent of pre-season practice for a college football varsity. The Chicago competition will feature a round-robin involving a dozen teams from the Western Hemisphere. A year from now, as a prelude to the Olympics themselves, similar play-offs will will be held on a regional basis to reduce some 50 national standard-bearers to a workable draw of 16.

Reed, Pennsylvania-born and a member of Lehigh University's Class of 1927, is one of the most versatile and energetic members of Princeton University's Department of Physical Education and Athletics and a specialist in creating longevity records. This winter he completed his 26th season as head coach of wrestling, while last fall he rounded out 24 years as varsity soccer coach. A mere 20 years ago he became director of Princeton's program of intramural athletics which each year attracts well over 2,000 participants and sponsors upwards of 4,000 contests in sports ranging from touch football to "cowboy pool."

On the wrestling-conscious Lehigh campus, where the former wrestling coach is a "living legend," Reed is remembered as a great wrestler who also played soccer. In four years of intercollegiate competition he lost exactly two dual-meet bouts. He twice held intercollegiate wrestling titles, gathered his fair share of Junior and Senior A.A.U. championships and ultimately carried off the National A.A.U. crown in the 126-pound division. A decade following his graduation from Lehigh Reed developed an undefeated Princeton wrestling team and was president of Eastern Association of College Wrestling Coaches.

In recent years, Reed, a graduate alumnus of Columbia University and the father of a recent Lawrenceville School soccer captain, has been carrying off an increasing number of honors awarded by his teaching and coaching associates. The recipient in 1954 of the 25-Year Service Award of the American Wrestling Coaches and Officials Association, Reed three years later was one of eight soccer coaches invited by the Army to supervise clinics throughout its European command. Last spring he was designated the fifth winner of the "Award of Honor" conferred by the Bethlehem (Pa.) Boys' Club Fraternity, a distinction he shares with radio sportscaster Stan Lomax.

For compiling a record of outstanding accomplishment as a college coach; for his devotion and contributions to amateur athletics on all levels of athletic proficiency; for meriting recognition as one of the country's Olympic leaders; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

YEAR-ROUND LEARNING

Summer-Time Classes Abound. Because Princeton is the kind of town it is, formal education never stops here, regardless of the season. To other communities, summertime may mean swimming and fishing, sight-seeing and sun-bathing, but to Princeton summer means classes and institutes, seminars and special conferences.

Men and women come from all over the United States to attend these varied summer classes and people who live in Princeton the year round also participate. The mathematics teacher, enrolled in a course called "Introductory Probability with Statistical Applications," and the fifth-grader from Nassau Street School, taking a course in Beginning Trombone are both enrolled in the course that might well be known as "Learning in Princeton: Summer Semester." (Pictures on page 14.)

Included in the list of Princeton summer schools are the Princeton Theological Seminary's Institute; Princeton University's Summer Institutes for Chemistry and Mathematics Teachers; Prudential Life Insurance Company's Advance Management Program; and Metropolitan Life's Advance Management Conference. Then there's Westminster Choir College with a summer Vocal Camp and a vocal school, Princeton High School's summer program, the summer school at The Hun School and the music department of the High School.

Metropolitan Life is a newcomer to Princeton summers. The insurance company will conclude this week the first of its two three-week advanced management conferences, held at the Nassau Inn, for 45 of the company's top personnel. The next conference will begin on August 4.

"We picked Princeton because of its educational atmosphere," says Karl H. Kreder, director of the conference, "and not just because I'm a graduate of the University. Besides, there's prestige in the name 'Princeton' and a man who can say, 'I went down to Princeton to take a course in advanced management' has something of value, in both a business and a personal way."

Mr. Kreder also finds that Princeton, "quiet and conservative," is more conducive to study than a resort town.

Broad Perspective Sought. Metropolitan's conferences are designed to give upper management men a broad perspective of today's economic, social and political picture. Dr. Marver Bernstein of the University's department of politics and Dr. Paul Streyer of the economics department are among 16 college professors who provide "academic education" for the insurance men. Business administrators offer addresses and seminars in administrative subjects.

Prudential's curent course for 42 of its managers will also conclude this week, to begin again for three weeks on July 19 and again for the same period on August 16, each term designed for a higher management level. The courses, featuring case discussions, conferences in small groups and addresses by guest lecturers and company executives, are held on the University campus in Woodrow Wilson Holl.

Topics to be covered include "The National Economic Scene," "Leadership in Management," "The Administrative Process," and so on. Incidentally, the two insurance rivals joke about the possibility of spies from one company sneaking into another company's seminars.

"Opportunities to explore new lines of thought" — the words of Princeton's President Robert F. Goheen describe the purpose of the University's concurrent institutes for chemistry and mathematics teachers.

Both institutes, running from June 29 to August 7, are designed for teachers of exceptional ability and initiative. Forty-three math teachers from secondary schools all over the country, will discuss the revised college-preparatory math curriculum recommended by the College Board. Each week during the six-week institute, nne of the mathematicians serving on the Board's math commission will lecture and hold informal discussions with teachers who attend the Institute. Gerald D. Groninger of the Princeton High school math department is one of the teachers chosen to participate in the course.

Chemistry and Theology. The Chemistry Institute, with 31 secondary school teachers in attendance, gives teachers a chance to explore selected topics in organic, inorganic, analytical and physical chemistry. Radiochemistry, metallurgy and geochemistry are also in the curriculum.

At Princeton Theolgical Seminary, some 300 students will spend two weeks attending clinics in sermon delivery and studying theology, counseling, problems confronting the ministry and various aspects of the Bible. The Institute, which began Monday, will run through next week.

Teen-agers, chosen by audition from church choirs all over the country, have been attending the Vocal Camp at Westminster Choir College. Under the direction of Harold Hedgpeth of the Choir College faculty, these 275 boys and girls have been studying singing, both solo and choir, and they will take back to their churches the techniques learned in Choir College classes. Following the teen-agers, the private Professional School conducted by Dr. John F. Williamson, president emeritus of the College, will begin.

Another group of teen-agers, this one all boys, began on Monday a six-weeks' summer school session at The Hun School. This is the largest summer school in Hun history, with 68 boys enrolled. Seventeen of them are day students from the Princeton area, the others come to Hun from 15 different states.

Princeton High School offers, in its summer program, a variety of academic and commercial courses for boys and girls who want to strengthen a low mark, get a head start on next year, or learn a skill, like typing, that will carry them through many years.

About 300 students are enrolled at PHS this summer. Another 125 go to Princeton High each day for the music lessons given by the music department of Princeton High School's summer program. Operating under the direction of Sylvan Friedman and Thomas Hilbish, this school is now in its eight year.

Five instructors teach the children how to play wind, string, brass and percussion instruments, starting with the youngest 7th grader and proceeding to the advanced high school pupil. There is also a vocal course and a choir.

PERSONALITIES

Dr. Martin D. Kruskal, 60 Littlebrook Road, winner of a $12,000 senior post-doctoral National Science Foundation fellowship, which will enable him to leave July 31 for a year's work at the Institute for Theoretical Physics at the University of Munich and the Max Planck Institute for Astrophysics. A "plasma physicist" (so-called because he works with ionized gas) at Forrestal Research Center's "Project Matterhorn," Dr. Kruskal is also the holder of a Fulbright Award to teach this summer at Les Houches, summer school of theoretical physics at the University of Grenoble.

Mrs. Douglas E. Stuart, 12 Pardoe Road, public relations director at Princeton Hospital, whose highly-efficient behind-the-scenes activities will receive at least partial recognition next month. For placing first in the national competition for hospital "house organs" with "Broadcast," a six-page, 1000-circulation newspaper, Mrs. Stuart will receive a bronze plaque at a special awards ceremony next month in New York.

Allan G. Frank Jr., Brookstone Drive, 17-year old Hun School graduate, who this week shot a round of golf in qualifying for the annual handicap tournament at nearby Greenacres that many of his elders would like to match. The University of Pennsylvania-bound 17-year old toured the 18-hole layout in a par-equalling 71, his seven handicap giving him a 64 net and medalist honors.

ROUNDUP

This week's issue of TOWN TOPICS, running to 40 pages, is the first of its size to be published during the normally quiet period from July 4 to Labor Day . . . display advertising (including many sales and special price reductions) is up 17 percent over the corresponding issue of a year ago, while classified advertising is 22 percent greater.

Some residents of the Princeton area will be affected by the decision of Johnson & Johnson to close its cotton and gauze manufacturing plant in New Brunswick and consolidate it with similar operations in Chicago . . . in all, 380 employees are involved in the transfer, an economy move which will bring to an end 73 years of cotton and gauze manufacture in New Brunswick . . . Rutgers University will be offered an opportunity to purchase the land on which the buildings stand (thus removing thousands of dollars in ratables from the tax map.)

Even break: a car reported stolen last week by its owner, Charles W. Hubbell, Lawrenceville Road, was found by State Police in operating condition behind Mimi's Restaurant on Route 206 near Rocky Hill . . . another was taken from 17 Witherspoon Street on the evening of July 4, the owner (from West Reading, Pa.) mistakenly at ease for the thief by leaving his car keys on the front seat.

Crime also struck a freezer: Mrs. Charles Skillman, owner of a boarding house on North Talane Street, told police she had been robbed of a 22-lb. turkey and four chickens . . . Detective George Knowles is investigating on the theory that the thief knew where the freezer key was kept.

Summer weather which brought a delightful three-day holiday weekend to the Princeton area, last week produced a 40-degree temperature swing . . . from Monday's high of 98, the thermometer dipped all the way to 58 in the early morning hours of Friday July 3.

Despite the lengthening dry spell, which is beginning to burn out lawns and effect shrubbery and gardens, June's rainfall was 26 percent above normal . . . 4.97 inches were recorded, but those who insist there is a potentially troublesome drought developing are right: a good 40 percent of the total for June fell in a two-hour period on June 2, and the first week in July was bone dry.

In the face of traffic records set in New Jersey, highway deaths are running slightly below last year's figures: through July 4, 1958, 359 lives had been lost, whereas this year the total is 333 . . . increased use of highways throughout the State is reflected by New Jersey Turnpike figures, which show that the final two weeks in June each totalled more than 1,000,000 vehicles — a mark never before equalled on the 118-mile road . . . use during the first six months of the year is 14 percent greater than in 1958.

An average of five persons a month are bitten by dogs in Princeton Township, police figures show . . . every once in a while, a cat or a rabbit turns mean, too . . . the municipality reports 100 percent success in its drive to license animals as required by law and declares that there are no unlicensed dogs owned by Township residents.

GIRL SAVES BABY

From Drowning in Fish Pond. A 17-year-old girl who took a compulsory life-saving course in high school two years ago was credited by Township police this week with saving the life of a drowning toddler.

The girl, Jill Griffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Griffin Jr., 98 Jefferson Road, went on Sunday afternoon to baby-sit at the Great Road home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul N. Colby, Jr. Jill's charges were Dale Colby, 7; Cecily Schultz, 4; and Susan Schultz, 18 months. The Schultz children and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schultz of Scarsdale, were houseguests of the Colby's

Jill was watching young Susan bang the coffee table on the Colby terrace when she heard Dale and Cecily begin to quarrel inside the house. She went in to settle the argument—("what television program are we going to watch?")—and when she came out, she found that Susan had disappeared.

Dale Colby told the sitter that Susan had been fascinated by the fish pond and might have wandered down to pet the fish. Jill ran the several yards' distance to the pond and found Susan on the bottom of the shallow pool.

Child Calls Doctor. She pulled the baby out, began applying artificial respiration immediately, and shouted to Dale to phone for a doctor. The seven-year-old ran to the house, thumbed the classified section of the telephone directory and called an unidentified veterinarian. He told her to dial "Operator," which she did. The operator in turn called Borough police who transferred the call to the Township police department.

When Patrolmen Carnevale and Servis reached the Colby residence, they found Jill almost exhausted from an estimated 25 minutes of continuous work over the prone child. Susan, who had been blue when Jill fished her from the pond, had begun to turn pink, to move and to gasp for air. Patrolman Servis took over the respiration work and Patrolman Carnevale called the rescue squad. Susan was rushed to Princeton Hospital, admitted in fair condition under the care of Dr. J. Leonard Moore, and discharged on Monday morning.

Jill, who was graduated in June from Princeton High School, attended Lower Merion Township High School in Pennsylvania two years ago. A life-saving course is required of all Lower Merion students.

"I just did what I learned in the course," Jill said, "Dale was really wonderful. She's only 7, but she's the one who got help."

MANNERLY HEARINGS

Before Planning Board. The Borough Planning Board, following two of the quietest public hearings within recent memory, effectively torpedoed the present Borough Administration's "open-government policy" by retreating into executive session to devote nearly two hours to non-action discussion of two pending subdivision proposals.

On the carpet Tuesday evening in the Witherspoon Auditorium were the plans of Brisby Builders, Inc., to build 38 homes of the $30,000-variety on the 11-acre tract lying along the much-discussed extension of Prospect Avenue (between Cedar Lane and Riverside Drive) and Anthony LaPlaca's proposal to erect 14 homes in the $25-35,000 category on the plot bounded by Harrison Street North, Hamilton Avenue and Spruce Street extended.

No Final Decisions. While the Planning Board, with six members present, put in a workmanlike evening dissecting plans it had previously considered at length, no final action was taken. It is now probable that both plans, amended to meet prescribed specifications, will be approved largely as they stand at the August 10 gathering of the Borough planners.

Prospect Avenue. The "Brisby Plan" for the Cedar Lane-Riverside Drive neighborhood, which will require additional Borough-Township cooperative action on drainage problems, may well bring the Borough face-to-face with the word "Bicker," a term traditionally associated with the University's upperclass eating clubs, located on the western reaches of Prospect Street.

It is now a reasonable assumption, on the basis of available evidence, that the Borough in the near future will move to "open up" Prospect Avenue—provided that the Township implements its avowed plans of creating a Sycamore link between Harrison Street and the bottle-necked Riverside section, whose only cross-Princeton route lies along increasingly congested Nassau Street.

The extension of Prospect Avenue, an integral part of the "Brisby plan" and described as inevitable by many, is now apparently approved by a majority of Borough Council. Twice in recent years the Planning Board has acted in a Gaston-Alphonse fashion, approving the action if the Township would simultaneously "open" Sycamore as a parallel cross-town artery.

The lone Borough hold-out of record against Prospect Extension is Council President Coyle who insists that this "is not sound corrective action for botched-up and belated subdivision planning." What is needed before he will agree, he has said, "is a long-range through - traffic plan, including firm commitments for a new Harrison Street bridge."

Mr. Coyle has contended that "dead-ending more traffic into Washington Road, via a through route along the east-west axis of an extended Prospect Avenue, will create more Borough traffic problems than it will ever solve."

Brisby Hearing. Only two questions of moment were raised during the 25 minutes given over to the area lying directly across the street from the abutting Riverside School. Ledyard R. Tucker, 102 Cedar Lane expressed concern over the traffic that might be generated by Prospect Avenue extension.

John M. Brown, 66 Cedar Lane, questioned the creation of a 50-foot wide strip which would ultimately permit the extension of Patton Avenue, across Cedar Lane, to Robert Road, one of the two loop, or interior, roads projected by the developers.

LaPlaca Hearing. Mr. LaPlaca, whose plan unlike Brisby's is still pending before the Mercer County Planning Board, drew questions from four neighbors. John T. Clough, 222 Hamilton Avenue; Dr. W. Frank Craven, 36 Scott Lane; Thomas M. Newell, 204 Hamilton, and Roger H. McDonough, 270 Spruce Street.

The queries stemmed from interest in landscaping and drainage problems presented by Harry's Brook, which slices diagonally through the LaPlaca tract; the preservation of existing trees; and the possibility of adding to the Borough's traffic burdens by "cutting through" the mapped extension of Spruce Street.

FLOWER NO HYDRANT

Dog's Error Costs Owner $5. A dog who didn't know that a living flower can't be treated like a cast-iron hydrant cost his mistress $5 by the time a lengthy and oft-postponed case was settled Tuesday night in Township Court.

The complainant was Samuel Cohen, 24 Littlebrook Road.

The defendant was Mrs. Anna Niese, 7 Deerpath Lane—or maybe it was her brown and tan dachsie and both sides were represented by lawyers, who had had a hard time getting together on a date for the trial. The case had been postponed several times since the original date for a hearing early in June.

Mr. Cohen charged that the dachshund's wanderlust led the dog into his garden. Further, that the dog's natural propensity for leg-lifting, which led him into the Cohen's flowerbed, had decimated the greenery. As the technical complainant in the case, Police Chief James Campbell reported that a warning had been issued Mrs. Niese and that a second violation had necessitated a charge of violating the dog ordinance.

This requires dogs to be on a leash or accompanied by a responsible person when they wander off their own property. Observing the niceties of day-to-day living, the ordinance does not delve into such matters as dead flowers mistaken for hydrants by brown and tan dachshunds, but the law was clear in the eyes of Magistrate Louis R. Gerber.

Agreeing that a violation existed, he imposed a minimum $5 fine. Court adjourned.

In traffic court action earlier that evening, two young drivers were charged with careless driving. Theron W. Downes, 18, 55 Harrison Street, lost his license for 90 days and paid $5 court charges. Lawrence Van Kirk, 20, Cranbury Road, Princeton Junction, was fined $25.

PLANNING BOARD MEETS

In Township Should the Forrestal Development Corporation be required to lay curbs and sidewalks in part of its "Riverside" development when Princeton University was not required to do so in its Gray Farm development, described as "virtually identical?"

The question was raised before the Township Planning Board on Monday night by Theodore T. Tams, representing Riverside. The Board took no action on the request for a decision.

The Riverside aspect involved are Mason Drive, Woodside Lane and three lots on Prospect. Mr. Tams pointed out that a large part of the Gray Farm development had neither curbs nor sidewalks. "The University was relieved of this necessity," he said, "and we think it's only fair that we should be, too; the two developments are virtually identical."

Members of the Planning Board said that, since Riverside is nearer a school than Gray Farm, sidewalks and curbs might be considered more essential. John Donal, Township school board member on the Planning Board, said that 45-50 children might be going to Riverside School from the Riverside area under consideration. B. Franklin Bunn, Planning Board member who had made the original motion concerning Gray Farms curbs and sidewalks, told the Board he regarded his motion as a mistake.

In other business, the Board:

- Recommended to Township Committee that curbs be laid on Terhune from Harrison to Grover Avenue.
- Approved the final plan of Section Six of Princeton Country Estates (the Tyson Lane-Little Brook-Poe Road area), Tyson to be constructed by the Township on an assessment basis with the engineering work contributed by Sandean Construction Company, the developer.
- Approved a minor subdivision of 22 acres of the Russell estate, in which a one-and-one-half acre lot will be sliced from the rest of the property.
- Approved the Laurel Road subdivision of the Holder Corporation, subject to the extension by Holder of Laurel Road.

HOUSING LAW DISCUSSED

By Township Health Board. The Township Board of Health spent a good part of its meeting last Wednesday night answering questions and trying to decide what should and what should not be included in its proposed Bill of Rights for housing tenants. Most of the bill's controversial details, the committee agreed, will require further study.

The proposed ordinance will regulate the condition and maintenance of all dwellings, including those owned by the occupants. The health board plans to introduce the ordinance to the Township Committee for action in the fall. Whatever provisions are ultimately decided upon will be enforced by Mrs. Charlotte Farley, the Township health officer. Municipal health officers were recently authorized by the United States Supreme Court to enter and inspect homes without a warrant.

In their discussion of possible provisions, the health board mem-

Was a summer drought beginning to assume serious proportions? There were still two sides to the question, but those who kept one eye on lawns beginning to burn out and another on the Weather Bureau's records had statistics on their side: since the first of the year, rainfall was nearly seven inches below normal.

Maybe "Cindy," one of the season's early hurricane threats, would make her presence felt with welcome precipitation and not much in the way of wind. Could rain by Friday, if only because of the low pressure area moving eastward from the Plain States. The weekend should be clear, although the humidity may start upward again after a delightful week following the end of July's first heat wave.

News Of The THEATRES

A review of "The Play's the Thing," current University Players' production, appears on page 10.

PLAYERS LIST "GODOT"

Sawyer to Direct. The University Players will present Samuel Beckett's "Waiting for Godot" from Tuesday through Saturday at 8:30 next week at Murray Theatre. Directed by David Sawyer, the production will feature Philip Minor as Vladimir, James Harden as Estragon, John Wynn-Evans as Lucky and Mario Siletti as Pozzo.

"Waiting for Godot," described by Walter Kerr as "a cerebral tennis match," has made Beckett one of the most controversial literary figures of the decade. The critics, however, have been almost uniformly favorably impressed by the work, with the London Times calling it "one of the most noble and moving plays of our generation."

"It is a mystery wrapped in an enigma," Brooks Atkinson said. "Mr. Beckett's acrid cartoon of the story of mankind has the jadhes, cruelty, comradeship, hope, corruption, filthiness and wonder of human existence."

COMEDY SCHEDULED

At Bucks County Playhouse, "Once More, With Feeling," one of the few comedies to run successfully on Broadway last winter, will be presented at the Bucks County Playhouse for two weeks beginning Monday night.

The production will star television personality Julia Meade, Scott McKay and Ezra Stone. The director will be Paul Leaf, who was stage manager of the New York production and who recently directed the comedy at the Westport Country Playhouse.

Julia Meade, who appears regularly on television's "Ed Sullivan Show," starred in "Boston Love Story" at the Bucks County Playhouse last summer, while Scott McKay was seen earlier this year with Jack Pyle in "Tunnel of Love." Ezra Stone plays Banjo in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," the current Playhouse attraction. Others in the cast of "Once More, With Feeling," will be Richard Durham, Bill Macy, Alfonso Morriconi and Ralph Bunker.

"Once More, With Feeling" is the Playhouse's final revival before a series of three new plays are presented by Michael Ellis, managing director. The new plays, the first of which will open July 27, will be "Cradle and All" by Sumner Arthur Long, "Intermission" by Ned Armstrong and "The Queen and the Rebels" by Ugo Betti.

"FOLLIES" ON PROGRAM

At Lambertville, St. John Terrell's Lambertville Music Circus will present "The Ziegfeld Follies," starring Bert Wheeler, for two weeks beginning Tuesday.

The current program, which runs through Sunday night, includes the jazz hands of Duke Ellington and Johnny Dankworth. Mr. Dankworth is a British discovery of Louis Armstrong, who was forced to cancel his scheduled appearance at the Music Circus because of his recent illness. Performances are at 8:30.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Say One For Me (July 8-11) is a frothy, handsomely-mounted little romantic comedy starring Bing Crosby, Debbie Reynolds and Robert Wagner, who are appealingly nonchalant, saccharine and callow, respectively. Crosby is cast as a priest whose parish is the New York theatrical district, where Miss Reynolds and Wagner are working — she as an aggressively innocent young actress, he as a fast-talking, high-living comic.

It is Crosby's task to convince Wagner that he is not living right, that the path to true happianos terminates at Miss Reynolds' door, which is conveniently located near the church. Every imaginable cliche of sentimentality and popular religion is worked in somewhere, but flashes of brightness in the dialogue, as well as Crosby's sterling performance in a familiar role, keep the picture from being another cloying, show-biz epic.

Eight pleasant songs are provided by the talented writing team of Sammy Cahn and Jimmy Van Heusen. Unfortunately, only Crosby among the principals is able to sing. This does not prevent the others from trying, and several of the musical numbers—notably the title tune, performed ensemble by the three stars—are little short of fiascoes. In charity, it must be said that Miss Reynolds makes up for some of her vocal limitations by her customary sub-adolescent coteness, which has rarely been shown more effectively. The film is in CinemaScope and color.

Complete films of the Ingemar Johansson-Floyd Patterson heavyweight title fight will be shown at all performances of "Say One for Me."

Alias Jesse James (July 12-14) casts Bob Hope in the familiar Eastern - coward - in - the - Wild-West role he handled so successfully in "Paleface" and its sequels, and does it with verve and wacky humor. Hope, a bungling insurance salesman, discovers the Westerner to whom he has just sold a $100,000 life policy is, in reality, Jesse James. To assuage the anger of his explosive boss, Hope fearfully sets out for the West, determined to protect James' life and thus preserve the solvency of his company.

James, meanwhile, decides to knock off Hope, claim the salesman's body is his own and collect the insurance ("Got to go kill someone," James tells his mother; "Promise me you'll wear rubbers, son," she murmurs protectively). This precipitates an enormously amusing scene in which Hope's life is saved by a horde of defenders, including Gary Cooper, Roy Rogers, Ward Bond, Tonto, Fess Parker, James Arness and Bing Crosby.

Rhonda Fleming brightens the proceedings as James' girlfriend, who subsequently becomes romantically attached to Hope. Others in the excellent cast are Wendell Corey as James, Mary Young as "Ma" James, Jim Davis as Frank James, Gloria Talbot and Will Wright. The film is in color. Recommended.

John Paul Jones (July 15-18) is a lavish Technirama, Technicolor production, featuring Robert Stack in the title role, Bette Davis as Catherine the Great, Charles Coburn as Benjamin Franklin, Marisa Pavan, Erin O'Brien, Macdonald Carey and Jean Pierre Aumont. The plot details, with approximate historical accuracy, the life of the naval hero who laid the groundwork for the establishment of the United States Navy.

On trial for killing a mutinous seaman, John Paul, escapes to Virginia and takes the added surname of Jones at the suggestion of a friend. He tries plantation life for a while but his inborn love for the sea triumphs and he accepts a commission to command the first American warship for the Continental Congress. The King and Queen of France lend Jones money to build the "Bonhomme Richard," with which he conquers a British convoy in the Baltic. When George III recognizes the sovereignty of the United States, Jones makes a futile plea to build and maintain a larger navy. Turned down, he is sent to Russia to command Catherine's battle forces.

It's a great saga, with generous helpings of the kind of fire-and-velvet romance found only in historical dramas. The cast is competent and John Farrow has done a bold and fast-paced job of direction.

THE GARDEN

Hercules (July 9-11) is a big, loud, corny spectacle film that wears the added hair shirt of English dubbing over the Italian soundtrack. Steve Reeves, formerly better known as Messrs. America, World and Universe, plays the mythical hero with plenty of rippling muscle in sight.

The story is an approximate retelling of Jason's search for the Golden Fleece, but its main function is to provide a loose framework for a series of widescreen, Eastman color feats of strength. Reeves, who turns the screen into a sort of celluloid Stillman's Gym, (1) throttles a lion with his bare hands, (2) confronts an enraged bull, and (3) tears down a pillared palace. If you go for this sort of thing, you'll perhaps overlook the film's forthright effort to avoid poaching on the realm of drama.

Love in a Many-Splendored Thing (July 13-15) continues the Garden's summer policy of three-day revivals for films which have distinguished themselves on one front or another in the past. In CinemaScope and color, the film stars William Holden and Jennifer Jones.

Though its lachrymose story of a love affair in the Far East frequently seems better suited for daytime television, you'll have to be more cynical than we were not to be moved by the final scene, in which Miss Jones runs up a scenic hill for one last clinch. In

SINK OR SWIM

Or, Ideally, Both. The Bradford Pool people are chiefly interested in convincing you that you should have a pool in your back yard. That done, they hope to keep you there or if not there, then on some other water hole, spearing fish most likely, or skin diving for old beer cans.

Bradford has a retail outlet (this is not the kind of outlet that drains a swimming pool; we come to that later) on Nassau Street behind the Skillman and Skillman Realty building. Here you will find devices to keep you on top of the water, half way under, or completely submerged. There is even a pool magnet, especially good for those beer cans we mentioned.

To begin with, Bradford has some excellent styrofoam floats and rafts. One is a sectional raft that folds up so you can carry it like a suitcase. Another is a Kiki board for children to kick around on while they are learning to swim.

A different kind of plastic makes a doughnut shaped float for children. Its hole has a shaped lip which fits around the child's body, giving him a feeling of security. Shoulder straps reinforce the feeling. The plastic is rather like cork except that it's firmer and whiter.

Swimmers who have graduated from this may proceed to a trampolene designed for pools that are too small for diving boards. The trampolene is a square of heavy canvas, two feet each way, fastened with heavy canvas thongs to a metal frame about a foot off the ground.

The frame, in turn, is attached to a small step-ladder. Put the whole thing right at the edge of your pool, climb the ladder, jump down onto the trampolene and spring into the water.

But if you really must have a diving board, you can get a little one only four and a half feet long. Its fat spring is heavy enough to recoil safely under the fattest springer.

Serious swimmers who don't go for this surface stuff, may purchase from Bradford an incredible array of under-water equipment. There are fins from $3.95 (mask included) up to $11.95 and masks from $1.

For $55, you may have a chest tank aqua lung, the "Vigo", which will give you 20 minutes of air. (This is the baby aqua lung. Others are available, too, and special orders can be filled within 24 hours. "I am at the bottom of Lake Carnegie and the 20 minutes is up on my Vigo. Please send me . . . . .")

The "Penetrator" is a compressed air water gun for fishermen. There is also a magnificent hunting knife with shaped cork handle and a blade that combines a smooth, sharp point and a serrated edge. If you like to shoot without compressed air water guns, there is an underwater camera, $19.95, with a shoe for flash attachments.

For pool owners, Bradford has fittings: drains, outlets, a nylon wall brush, vacuum fittings, algae brushes, lane markers, rope, underwater lights, filter meters and filters.

The accessory with the most possibilities, in our opinion, is the lead belt. If you just can't sink low enough, you surface and then wind yourself with this belt made of flat lead oblongs linked together, each lead link about four inches long. We must remember to go back to Bradford and find out how you get it off when that 20 minutes is up.

Now, About Wagner. Actually, we finished off Wagner with our description of that Rhinegold record. Barlow's music shop also caters to other tastes with a wide selection of records for summer listening.

Shelley Berman, the "cerebral comedian", as he has been called, modestly puts his monologues on a disc for all to hear. Peter Ustinov has an uproarious description of a sports-car race, the Grand Prix of Gibraltar, in which he makes all the sound effects himself, including sports car motors, crack-ups and Peter Ustinov.

"Gypsy" is stereo and monaural. There are as many "Porgy and Bess" recordings as there are porgies in the sea. Take your pick.

One has the original sound track without the original cast, if you want something to work on during vacation. There is also Louis Armstrong, the world's most unlikely Porgy.

The 20th Century Folk Mass, in jazz, is a piece of excitement for the beard-and-sandal set. Those with high-button shoes will enjoy the Golden Age Singers of the Metropolitan, in which the voices of Caruso, Melba, Patti, Calve and others, are reproduced on a single disc.

The recordings are technically poor, of course, but the voices are magnificent. The era covered is 1883 and 1903.

Barlow's also has the little micro-organs at $119, which you can carry around to cookouts.

The store, incidentally, will be closed for vacation from July 19 to 31.

"Krowemoh Etah I". This turns out to be or rather turns around to be, "I Hate Homework" spelled backwards and you will find it, in old English lettering, on a pillow at The Little Clothes Line, Palmer Square.

Be A Rhine Maiden

At Barlow's music shop on Chambers Street, where musical offerings are usually cool and very dry, we found some wonderfully wet swimming music.

It's the stereo (monaural, too) recording of the complete Das Rheingold, and Mr. Frey, who runs Barlow's, reminds music lovers that Rheingold is the coolest opera known because it takes place right in the river. Play it while you're testing an aqualung in your pool and you can pretend you're a Rhine maiden.

In this recording, featuring Flagstad, George London and the Vienna Philharmonic, you get 14 tuned anvils, including one bass anvil, 12 harps and a weather machine. What this adds up to, in stereo, we leave to you and Wagner.

All we want to know is, how do you tune an anvil and will that weather machine do us any good next time the discomfort index goes up?

PEARL PRIMUS DELIGHTS

Perfect Summer Entertainment. A summer-minded audience and a light-hearted group of entertainers combined forces Monday night in 10 McCosh Hall to give the University Players' summer concert series an auspicious start. If the laughter and applause of the near-capacity audience can be taken as an omen, the concert series is off to a successful season.

The Pearl Primus group consists of three female dancers including Miss Primus; two drummers, who also sing; a woman vocalist; and a pianist who also performs on the steel drum. The latter was unfortunately unable to come to Princeton in time for the concert, so that the steel drum number was dropped. A substitute pianist was drafted a few minutes before the performance opened, and did very well on short notice.

The main star of the group is, of course, Miss Primus herself. A Pearl, who exuberantly thinks the world is her oyster, she danced and choreographed a variety of numbers with geographic origins spanning from the Belgian Congo to Cuba and Harlem of the '20's, all adapted with an alert eye to please an American audience seeking entertainment.

Miss Primus seems particularly at home in a rather sanguine idiom, such as in the choreography for an African engagement dance executed by maidens in front of eligible bachelors, and, as a dancer, as a gum-chewing jazz dancer of the '20's, swinging a jaunty pair of yellow gloves in one hand and an absurd little bag in the other.

But she can also convey power and feeling in her work. A fertility dance from Nigeria, billed in the program as performed by pregnant women, was awaited by a great deal of well-bred whispering and program-rustling, and proved to be an impressive solo by Miss Primus.

An Afro-Cuban dance, Santos, appeared to be a primitive version of "Giselle," with the dancer compelled to obey the rhythm of the drums until she falls dead. The horror of Miss Primus as the dancer and the blood-curdling frenzy of the entire company driving her on made this number one of the most interesting.

Fine Supporting Company. The two dancers, Edith Bascombe and Mary Waithe, interpreted several numbers very well. On the drums, Samuels Phills performed with excellence and vigor. Mr. Phills also sang a chant marked by an even flow of music accompanied by a great variety of gestures.

Percival Borde, who also acted as stage manager and lightning expert, sang Afro-Caribbean chants in French, and explained the steel drum to a rapt audience. The female vocalist was Helen Tinsley, who sang an African lament and three spirituals and added much to the general uproar during the dances.

Of minor quibbles with the program, it should be mentioned that the lighting was poorly handled and managed to make McCosh's postage-size stage look even smaller — which is quite a feat. It might also be suggested that the Commedia del Arte character who symbolizes the University Players and was hung on the backdrop, clashed somewhat with the semi-primitive dances and rhythms.

The over-all impression, however, was of a pleasant summer night's entertainment, executed by a gay and handsome troupe of people with much charm. It made an excellent appetizer for the rest of the summer's menu.

FOUR-HAND CONCERT LISTED

Mrs. McKinney, Cone to Play. Mathilde McKinney and Edward T. Cone will appear in a concert of music written for four hands at one piano on Monday in McCosh 10 on the Princeton campus. The program is part of the University Players' summer concert series.

Mrs. McKinney, who teaches in Princeton, has appeared as soloist with leading orchestras around the country. Professor Cone, a member of the Princeton University music department, is one of America's most important young composers and pianists. He has received Guggenheim and Woodrow Wilson fellowships, among others.

FOUR TO ONE: Mathilde McKinney and Edward T. Cone will appear in a concert of four-hand, one-piano music at McCosh 10 on Monday at 8:30. The program is part of the University Players' summer concert series.

Their program will include sonatas by Mozart and Harold Shapero, a contemporary American composer, shorter pieces by Schubert and Mendelssohn will also be heard.

It's New To Us

There is also a rectangular pillow designed like an envelope. It says:

Miss U. Much
Ware Ever I Go
Allova, U.S.A.

Of course, most customers of the Little Clothes Line have very little homework beyond the consumption of a zwieback. For these, the shop has a new set of terry squeak towels. A squeak towel is a white bath towel with an animal applqued on it. Under the applique is a squeak device that responds to the pressure of a small finger.

Current sets have a sporty kitten in cap and blazer, various mice, butterflies, a hen and chickens and some urchins going to bed, candlestick in hand. A crib pouf and musical pillows match.

For summer nights, the Clothes Line suggests fine plisse sleepers for very young babies (sleepers are sized according to the weight of the child). They have short sleeves and feet. Fine-wale light-weight corduroy makes a similar sleeper for cooler nights.

Exquisite white diaper sets, rubber pants and shirt, are embroidered with small figures of Frere Jacques ringing his bell ("Sonnez les matines," it says on the seat of the pants), rocking horses and blocks, or a splendid train of cars. The embroidery is small and unobtrusive, the round collar is small and charming, the sleeves short and cool.

Swiss needlewomen send along some suits for little boys in drip dry cotton. They are red, brown and tan, yellow and white. All are classic in cut, with trimly pleated shorts held by suspenders, and round-collared shirts. They belong to toughies of about two.

bers said they felt dryness and general health standards might be more important in cellar rooms than the percent of space occupied by windows or the amount of the room that is below ground level. While the ordinance will almost certainly prohibit the renting of basement quarters, the board indicated that this provision would not interfere with the construction of basement recreation rooms.

The whole problem of cellar quarters was listed for further study, along with possible means of licensing rooming houses. Dr. William Kleinberg, a member of the board, said Township attorney Gordon Griffin will decide whether this can best be brought about through a separate ordinance or through an addition to the larger one.

Mrs. Paul Schleyer, 184 Prospect Avenue, asked the board what effect the ordinance would have on the Harrison Street project. Dr. Kleinberg said the committee intends to look into this problem. In response to questions from Mrs. Turner Stephens, 37 Leigh Avenue, and Mrs. Ethel Allison, 27 Birch Street, Dr. Kleinberg said every effort would be made to make it possible for old houses to meet the new requirements, but he added that those which could not after a reasonable "grace" period would have to be torn down.

MOLNAR COMEDY ENJOYABLE

Players Cast Top Notch. "The Play's The Thing"—so says Hamlet, and the University Players prove him right in their current production of Ferenc Molnar's period comedy. The playwright has used the device of the play within a play to catch the conscience of his characters in an amiable and sophisticated manner. The cast proves equal to the tempo and mixtures of styles, and the audience is the winner in this combination.

Nick Savian and James Harder play the two successful operetta writers, Sandor Turai and Mansky, with utter charm. Mr. Harder, as the "straight man" to Mr. Savian's overblown ego, was somewhat stiff during the first act, but warmed to his role and delivered his lines with vigor throughout the last two.

Mr. Savian's characterization of the impresario with a heart rang completely true from the opening curtain. His ability as a comedian was evident as he managed the other characters with an easy grace.

The Woman Enters. In her first Princeton appearance, Joan Hackett, as the prima donna, created the proper dramatic impression both through her delivery and facial expressions. As the woman caught in the foolishness of betraying her fiance with an older actor, she entered fully into the spirit of the play, and presented a lovely picture. Her costumes added a great deal.

Her would-be lover and foil, Philip Minor, quite literally threw himself into the part of Almady, and carried out his pratfalls with complete assurance. He played his part broadly, as was right, and his loss of dignity at the hands of the other characters, and especially his lady love, was superbly portrayed.

Dick Story played the fiance, Albert Adam, rather woodenly. His acting ability is not suited to a comedy, and his lines were largely thrown away.

In the other roles, Mario Siletti, as the butler with the unpronounceable name, and John Wynne-Evans, as the count's secretary, played their parts superbly. Mr. Siletti was properly imperturbable, and Mr. Evans properly nervous. Both showed their complete mastery of the comic art.

Direction Excellent. Particular credit is due Mr. Siletti for his direction. The essence of comedy is pace and emphasis, and these are present in abundance. The playwright had deliberately broken the atmosphere of individual scenes at given moments, and the interludes serve to point up the author's theses. The breaks are handled naturally by the actors, who move and gesture in fine style.

The play combines several concepts of comedy and the mixture is successful. The Eastern European element is reminiscent of the low comedy of "The Good Soldier Schweik," and the English-drawing-room aspects are more obviously present, perhaps partly attributable to P.G. Wodehouse's adaptation.

Although the scene is laid in the summer of 1931 on the Italian Riviera, to the "Depression babies" at least, it could have taken place any time 40 years prior to that date. In evoking a bygone era, the play has a definite asset in its aura of nostalgia. The Players have come up with a worthwhile piece of light theatre which should delight its audiences.

Board member William Marvel suggested that an expert be called in to explain housing problems in detail at the first board meeting in the fall. The board indicated the problem of rooming house licensing will probably be taken up at an executive session before the first meeting.

In other business, the board pointed out that dogs innoculated against rabies at the May, 1959, clinics are eligible for January licenses without another shot. The letter of the ordinance requires shots within six months of the licensing date, but the board has been assured by veterinarians that the extra month will not matter.

Dogs which were not innoculated in May, however, will have to receive a shot this fall. The date for the fall clinic, during which more than 1,000 animals are expected to be innoculated, will be announced later.

The proposed ordinance regulating water lines will not be ready for July introduction, but Mr. Marvel said he expects the Hermontown Circle line to be started in this construction season . . . Mr. Griffin will confer with Borough authorities on the appointment of a dog warden . . . Dr. Kleinberg reported that Dr. Elmer Albert has not yet given the results of tests on a sample of water he took from the Board of Health on June 10.

AWARD GIVEN

To Hospital Publication. "Broadcast," Princeton Hospital's monthly publication, has received the top award in the annual national competition sponsored by "Hospital Management," a journal for hospital administrators and department heads. A bronze plaque will be given to Mrs. Douglas Stuart, the hospital's public relations director and editor of "Broadcast," at a special breakfast August 25 in New York.

The six-page publication is distributed to over 1000 persons, including the hospital's medical staff and employees, patients at the time the issue appears, the board of trustees, all volunteer groups, and other interested people. It contains news of all hospital activities ranging from staff decisions to personal items, as well as pictures and cartoons.

Mrs. Stuart, a graduate of of Douglass College and the Rutgers School of Journalism, came to the hospital two years ago as its first public relations director. She changed "Broadcast" from mimeographed sheets to its present format, designed by P. J. Conkwright, art director of the Princeton University Press.

'THEY TEASED ME WHEN . . .'

But She Won Beauty Contest. A pretty Westminster Choir College student, whose friends teased her when she entered her first beauty contest last fall, this week had the last laugh. She has been chosen as New Jersey's entry in the Miss Universe contest to be held in Long Beach, Calif., this summer.

It all started in September, just after Miss Geraldine Binder of Irvington had enrolled as a freshman at Westminster. She entered the "Miss New Jersey State Fair" contest in Trenton, and won.

This week she was one of 17 entrants at Palisades Park, with the winner to represent New Jersey at the international contest in California. Miss Binder was entered as "Miss Princeton," under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club here.

The first student at the 35-year old college to make headlines in this manner, Miss Binder is 18, has light brown hair, blue eyes, weighs 120 and measures 35-23-35. Informed that she was the winner at Palisades Park, she started to cry, but recovered her composure and told reporters:

"My friends teased me when I went into the first contest. But the college didn't seem to object, so I kept on entering. This is the biggest one yet!"

PLAYMATES: Joan Hackett and Dick Story are the stars of the University Players' production of "The Play's the Thing," now at Murray Theatre.

RUG MART EXPANDS

Adds Shopping Center Outlet. Roger W. Yard, Laurel Road, and Arthur B. Yard, Red Hill Road, owners of the Rug Mart, and Joseph Herrmao, Lake Drive, co-owner of the Furniture Mart, this week announced acquisition of Bardeo Furniture Company in the Princeton Shopping Center.

The new branch in the shopping center will be known as Ivy Manor and will feature furniture, bedding and floor coverings. All services available at the main store on Route 206 will be extended to the branch where Walter Harris, who has been with Bardeo, will continue his services as a new member of the Rug and Furniture Mart personnel.

Leland Silleo, of Wapakoneta, O., will be the manager of Ivy Manor. He has served as manager of a large southern furniture company and territorial manager of the Philadelphia division of Fugelow Sanford Carpet Company.

The new owners said, "we hope to be able, with this branch acquisition, to show our appreciation of customer patronage over the years by giving increased services and lower prices." The Rug Mart and Furniture Mart were founded 15 years ago.

FIRMS RECEIVE AWARDS

From Operation Nassau. The Operation Nassau committee of the Princeton Junior Chamber of Commerce this week presented awards to Farr Hardware Co., Anthony's House of Coiffures and Middlesex Realty Co., for keeping recent alterations to their places of business in conformity with the architectural traditions of Princeton.

The awards were received by Harry A. Farr II, Anthony Scaramozzino of Anthony's and Mrs. Joyce Woodruff of Middlesex. Dr. Richard L. McClelland and John Ehmann, co-chairmen of the committee, presented the certificates.

Operation Nassau awards are made periodically, according to the committee, "to encourage occupants of the Princeton business area to preserve the individuality and charm which have so long been a part of Princeton's attraction." Additional awards will be presented in the fall.

FIRM REORGANIZES

Changes at Princeton Agency. The Princeton Agency, Inc. reorganized this week, taking on the name of Sturhahn, Dickenson and Bernard, Inc. The new corporation will operate in the renovated building of the Princeton Agency, Inc., at 15 Chambers Street.

Continuing as president of the organization is Herbert C. Sturhahn who founded the Princeton Agency in 1945. Melville P. Dickenson, Jr., and John F. Bernard will join the new agency as partners.

Mr. Dickenson, Princeton University graduate of 1949, has been affiliated with Equitable Life Assurance Society in Philadelphia and then organized M. P. Dickenson and Associates in 1957. The latter firm will continue to maintain offices in Philadelphia for the benefit of clients who commute to that city. He lives with his wife and three children in Moorestown.

Mr. Bernard, who also graduated from Princeton in 1949, was associated with Phoenix Insurance Company of Hartford before joining M. P. Dickenson and Associates as a partner and head of casualty and fire departments last year. He resides in Hopewell with his wife and three children.

A junior member of the new firm will be R. Norman Wood, a

Applied Science Sold

The Applied Science Corporation of Princeton has been purchased by Electro-Mechanical Research, Inc., of Sarasota, Fla., it was announced this week in a joint statement by the two electronics firms. The price was approximately $3,800,000, a figure equivalent to about $9 per share of ASCOP.

Dr. John H. Wallace Jr., 186 Library Place, ASCOP president, said that while the agreement has been approved by the directors of both companies, it is subject to the approval of ASCOP stockholders. Negotiations were conducted for merger of the Princeton firm with a West Coast electronics company earlier this year, but ended without action.

Gordon S. Slaughter, president of the Florida corporation, announced that ASCOP will be operated as a division of EMR and that its facilities will continue to be maintained at Princeton Junction. EMR is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Schlumberger, Ltd.

Gentler Curve Planned

For Section of Pretty Brook.

One of the Township's bad curves will be tamed when a section of Pretty Brook Road is realigned and a new bridge built. County engineers say the job may begin this fall.

The curve is about a quarter of a mile up Pretty Brook from Province Line and the bridge is an old stone arch culvert so narrow that two cars cannot pass. Calvin Schufield, Township engineer, says that both vertical and horizontal alignment are bad, meaning that there are both hills and curves.

About half a mile of the road will be pulled out straighter than it now is, although it will not be a perfectly straight line when it is finished. The new road will be moved about 38 feet from its present alignment and a new culvert bridge will be built. The road bisects the property of David Mathey.

Harvard graduate of 1951 and presently assistant hockey coach at Princeton. He has business experience with Hunneman and Company, Boston real estate broker, where he received the "Deal of the Year" award from the Boston Real Estate Board in 1957.

George Gallup, T. S. Dignan and Gilbert Lea will continue as directors for Studebaker, Dickenson and Bernard. Public relations and advertising counsel will be furnished by Lenhart and Company.

NEW HOMES OFFERED

In Twin Oaks Development. Fifty-four custom-built homes will be offered to prospective buyers in the new 100-acre Twin Oaks development on Packler Road between Lawrenceville Road and the old Princeton Pike.

The Fran-Wick Corporation, developers and builders, have announced that two homes, designed by Victor Olgyay, are now open for inspection. Mr. Olgyay has drawn plans for the remaining houses as well, orienting each house correctly in relation to sun and wind. About one and one-half acre lots go with each Twin Oaks home.

Jacob W. Zwick is president of Fran-Wick, John L. Franey is treasurer and Albert H. Rees, Jr., secretary.

HOME SALES SOAR

In Kendall Park Development. Over 40 per cent of the 350 homes in the new Kendall Park development on Route 27 in Franklin Park have been sold in less than three months since their introduction, according to Herbert J. Kendall, builder.

He reported that a further spurt in the sales pace is anticipated with the seasonal July and August sales increase. The three and four-bedroom, two-bath ranch models are priced at $15,990 and $17,990 and are selling at a pace 10 per cent above last year's record for the Kendall Park community.

More than 200 dwellings are currently being framed, Mr. Kendall said, with utility and sewer installation already completed in the section. Delivery of 50-60 finished homes per month is planned starting in October. A new school and 23-store shopping center will be completed in the fall to serve the planned community.

The four-bedroom unit contains 1800 square feet of living space and a 20-foot attached garage with storage room. The brick-front house includes a 28-foot glass-walled kitchen, family room and playroom, and an open planned living room and dining room combining to a length of more than 24 feet.

The three-bedroom model, priced $2000 cheaper, offers a 20-foot kitchen, attached garage, woven mahogany folding closet doors and zone-planned bedroom wing off an interior hall for privacy and separation from the main living section of the home.

FOREIGN STUDENTS COMING

Will Arrive Monday. Two busloads of American Field Service foreign exchange students will arrive in Princeton on Monday for a two-day visit. The 68 students, representing 25 countries, will be guests of Princeton families. Each of the students has spent the past year living with an American family while attending high school.

Two members of the group spent the year here. They are Miss Guliz Sarmat of Turkey, who lived with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Scheide, 133 Library Place, while attending Miss Fine's School, and Kunisuga Ide of Japan, who lived with Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Tomlinson, the Great Road, and attended Princeton High School.

The schedule of entertainment for the visitors begins on Monday evening with a swimming party and picnic supper at Shipetaukin Farm Day Camp, which has been made available by Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Kehoe. On Tuesday the group will tour Princeton University and the David Sarnoff Research Center. The students will leave Princeton Country Day School by bus on Wednesday morning.

THISTLE LODGE TO MEET

This Friday Evening. Chief Daughter, Miss Gladys Wheeler will preside at the meeting of Thistle Lodge No. 220, Daughters of Scotia this Friday at 8.

The group will meet in the Odd Fellows Hall, 23 Witherspoon Street. Past Chief Daughter Miss Christina Carnegie will be in charge of refreshments.

ART CLASSES IN PROGRESS

For 3 to 5 Group. The Youth Committee of the YMCA is sponsoring an eight-week series of art classes for 3 to 5-year-old children this summer. The program includes crafts, games, singing, stories and dramatics.

The group met for the first time Tuesday under the direction of Mrs. Eve Dresser and Mrs. Elizabeth Coates. The classes will be held each Tuesday through August 25 from 9:30 to 11:30.

Those interested in registering their children should apply to the YMCA office on Avalon Place.

BOMB PROTEST PLANNED

For Monday. The Princeton Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy and the Princeton branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom will cooperate with groups in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania in sponsoring a caravan to Washington on Monday to protest agreements giving United States nuclear secrets to allied governments.

The caravan will travel to Washington by car and train. Persons interested in making the trip should contact Mrs. Daniel Trefan, WA 4-5747, or Mrs. Lorren Johnston, WA 1-4188. Under the proposed legislation, nuclear information and materials would be transferred to West Germany, Greece, Turkey, the Netherlands, France, Canada and Great Britain.

GARDEN CLUB TO MEET

Floral Arrangements Planned. The Lawrenceville Garden Club will meet Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Alfred Coles, 45 Green Avenue, Lawrenceville at 1 p.m.

Members will bring their lunches and flowers and entertain for arrangements. Hostesses are Mrs. Frank Bassom, Mrs. Luther Lindemuth, Mrs. Harold Dugan, Mrs. Kenneth Gooding, Mrs. Helmut Wakehaus and Mrs. Walter Crouse.

SUMMER ENROLLMENT UP

At Hun School. The Hun School opened its summer session on Monday with the largest enrollment in the history of the program. Of the 68 boys enrolled, 17 are day students from the Princeton area, while 51 are boarding students representing 15 states.

The summer session will continue until August 15. Concentrated instruction will be given in all academic subjects, with emphasis on the fundamentals of English and mathematics and the acquisition of proper study habits.

A developmental reading program will be given by a reading counselor. Thirteen members of the Hun School faculty are teaching in the summer school.

NOW IS THE TIME FOR ALL GOOD MEN . . . The green, sweet smells of summer beckon to these young students through the open windows of their Princeton High classroom but lessons come first. The typists belong to a class of beginners taught by Joseph Drulis as part of the six week summer school offered by the high school.

PLACES OPEN

For Y Day Camp. Boys and girls, aged 6 through 12, can still register for the third and fourth periods of the YMCA day camp at the Hun School. The third two-week period begins Monday, July 27.

A total of 83 boys and girls participated in the camp's first week, which ended Friday. The Y pool was used by older campers with the younger children swimming in a private pool. Swimming badges will probably be awarded to a record number of campers due to the increased facilities, according to Walter Sorg, youth director of the Y.

THIS IS SCHOOL? Three members of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's management conference take time out from case studies and lectures to hold a private seminar outside the Nassau Inn. Two three-week conferences have been scheduled by Metropolitan for this summer. (Story, page 1.)

EDUCATION GOES ON: Although Princeton University has no formal summer session, campus educational facilities by no means lie fallow during the hot months. William J. Elliott of Fort Thomas, Ky., shown here in Frick chemical laboratory, is one of 39 high school teachers taking part in the university's six-week summer institute in chemistry. Running concurrently is a similar institute for mathematics teachers.

A PLACE IN THE SUN: Pausing at the edge of the Princeton Swim Club pool, Gail Mount (left) and Sheila Holman ponder where they'd spend their summer vacations if they had unlimited funds. To learn if your answer corresponds with theirs—and others—see below.

Question of the Week

Question: If money were no problem, where would you spend your vacation this summer? Why?

Where asked: Princeton Swim Club, Washington Road.

Mrs. William C. Combs, 49 Wilson Road, housewife: We have four children who aren't here to put in their votes. As a mother, I'd love to spend my vacation anywhere that the children could swim — some place near the woods, with places to take nice, long walks, where there's someone to do my washing and cooking.

Arnold Goldberg, 8 Clearview Avenue, student: I'd go to the Riviere, because it's close to France. You meet a different group of people, there's swimming, the temperature stays about the same most of the year — and gambling is legal.

Sheila Holman, Dutch Neck, student: I'd travel across the United States and end up in California. I've always wanted to see the United States and I have scattered relatives all over.

Nick Pharasles, lifeguard and swimming instructor, Princeton Swim Club: The Isle of Rhodes in Greece. Having been there and also having been to the Riviera and many of the best resort areas in Europe and this country I know that if you want a true representation of the Mediterranean villa, you'll find it there. It was laid out by Mussolini to take the tourist trade away from other parts of Europe; its got wide streets, olive trees—it's fantastic. That's where I'd go if I had unlimited funds, and I'd need them.

Mrs. Stanley Stults, Cranbury, housewife: I suppose I'd be like everyone else and go to Europe if I had unlimited funds. I'd enjoy seeing the world, and I've never been to Europe.

Mrs. Paula Giffin, swimming instructor, Princeton Swim Club: I'd like to go to Hawaii. I understand from some people who have been there that the novelty wears off soon and you want to come back home, but never having been there I'm like the man from Missouri — I want to be shown. I'm inclined to think that people who enjoy swimming and enjoy the water want to go there.

Dr. William C. Combs, 49 Wilson Road: I'd like to tour the midwestern and western United States by automobile with the family. We'd cover all the national parks we could with whatever time we had. I feel you should see the great variety of sections of this country before touring places abroad.

Gail Mount, Cranbury Neck Road, Cranbury, student: I think I'd go to Hawaii. I've always dreamed of going there. It always looks so glamorous when you see it in pictures.

Mrs. George Grace, Pretty Brook Road, housewife: It's such an impossibility that I'd have to give it some thought. I guess I'd spend it in our new state, Hawaii. It's a purely frivolous place for a vacation.

Mrs. Margaret Drummond, 55 Jefferson Road, housewife: I'd like to take a cruise to Hawaii. I've always wanted to take one. When I was a child we were visited in Princeton by a friend of the family who owned a pineapple plantation in Hawaii. What he told us about it was so exciting that I've always wanted to go there.

Everyone's A Millionaire

When most people begin planning their summer vacations, the first decision that must be made is generally, "What can we afford?" But what if money were not a consideration?

Town Topics sent its inquiring reporter to the Princeton Swim Club this week to ask a group of Princeton area residents what they'd consider the ideal vacation. Where would you go, he asked, if money were no problem?

The answers were varied, although a high percentage of those queried put Hawaii at the head of their lists of possible spots. The appeal of the 50th state was traced to balmy weather, availability of water sports and just plain glamor. For these and other reactions, see this page.

Traffic problems at the Kingston bridge are not new. Back in the days of the Model-T, a gang of young people, five boys and a girl, according to the tale, took off one New Year's Eve in a Model-T to have a rip-roaring good time at some night spot on Route 27 (It was Route 13 in those days.)

The car rattled along the highway, missed the turn at the bridge and dumped all six of its occupants into the icy New Year's Eve waters of the Millstone.

And even earlier on a date lost in history, a Princeton blacksmith decided to stretch himself after several long, hard hours in a tavern.

He climbed into his sulky, flicked the whip at his horse and raced as fast as hoof could fly toward the Kingston bridge. He was going too fast for the turn, too, but his horse was better equipped than most modern cars. Instead of crashing into the bridge wall, the horse took a graceful leap over it ..nd the surprised blacksmith got a swim in the Millstone.

THE MENACING BRIDGES

At Kingston and Stony Brook. In the office of James Campbell, Township Chief of Police, there is a large wall map of Princeton Township. It is studded with pins marking the location of every accident that occurs in the Township during the year. At each end of the map (the east and west ends of the Township), there is a little cluster of pins, showing more graphically than any statistics, the hazards presented to the motorist by the Stony Brook and Kingston bridges.

Since January 1 of this year, eight cars have piled into the Kingston bridge over the Millstone River. Two of these accidents involved injuries. At the Stony Brook bridge on Mercer Road-Princeton Pike, there have been four accidents since the first of the year, three of them causing injuries.

Stony Brook, with its humpback design, has been responsible for two deaths. On March 15, 1957, Rozell Anderson, 29, a Trenton motorcyclist, going home from Princeton was killed by a car just as cycle and car reached the hump of the bridge.

Less than a year before, on June 12, 1956, Kurt Elchler, 62, of New York, died after a head-on collision at the crest of the bridge.

Township police point out that the hump in the bridge obscures the view, no matter which way the motorist is going. A driver crossing the bridge toward Trenton — or vice versa — must assume that a car is coming toward him from the other direction. If he does not make this assumption, he may get into trouble.

Nearly Blind Approach. "The bridge has a very short sight distance," says Joseph Burke, assistant county engineer for bridges. "It should have a five degree approach grade to give minimum distance for sight."

Even if there were no traffic on the bridge, the structure itself presents a hazard, police say, and Township patrolmen report that many a motorist has gouged out pieces of car and bridge without notifying police of the accident.

PICTURESQUE, BUT . . . Stony Brook bridge on Mercer Road-Princeton Pike is a three span stone arch bridge, 150 years old. County engineers estimate that it would cost about $200,000 to replace it with a safer bridge downstream.

Pieces of broken glass and chipped pieces of stone tell the story long after the motorist has left the scene.

The bridge over Stony Brook is under the care of Mercer County engineers; the Kingston bridge over the Millstone is on a state highway and is, therefore, the charge of the highway department.

Stony Brook bridge is only about 15 feet wide. It is an old bridge — "one year older than God," one engineer has said — built in 1809 for horse and buggy traffic moving about five miles an hour.

Like the Kingston bridge, it was built at right angles to the stream because a straight line is usually the cheapest distance be-

PARADE TO GLORY

The story of the Shriners and their hospitals for crippled children.

By Fred VanDeventer, 32°
Crescent Temple

Numbering among their members many of the continent's most distinguished citizens, the Shriners now march over 800,000 strong. Parade to Glory tells their splendid story from 1870 through 1958 with the verve that is typical of this colorful force in American life. Here are the great and leading personalities of the Shrine and the events that have influenced Shrine history and the story of the development of the hospitals for crippled children, available to all needy patients, regardless of race or creed.

The author of Parade to Glory is himself a Shriner and is the Imperial Historian of the organization. He is most widely known as a news commentator and as a star of the radio and TV program, "Twenty Questions." In Parade to Glory he combines a proud delight in Shrine history with a reporter's instinct for a good story—which is, indeed, the ultimate recommendation for this unique and highly entertaining volume.

Illustrated with 8 color pages and over 70 black-and-white photographs.

tween two points. Result a sharp, dangerous reverse curve at the approach to the bridge.

Poor Alignment. Calvin Schofield, Township engineer, says that the bridge should have been built at a skew so that the road could be properly aligned. This might mean a bridge constructed at an angle of 15 or more degrees to the stream, with longer abutments, a longer span, an increased cost and increased safety.

Kingston is an old bridge, too; its newest part is a cement wall built last year after a truck plowed through the old one. A spokesman for the State Highway Department says the Kingston bridge "is not in keeping with highway department standards." The department's overall master plan, keyed to completion about 1975, includes the widening of Route 27 to four lanes and presumably the realignment of the Kingston bridge, but engineers in the department have no idea when Kingston's turn will come up.

Plans for rebuilding Stony Brook were announced in 1946, but there was such an outcry from persons who valued the bridge for esthetic and historic reasons, that county engineers quietly dropped the plan. If it had gone into effect, it would have meant an intersection with islands, stop signs and so on.

After the death of Mr. Anderson in 1957, Township officials asked the county to do something about the bridge and Mercer engineers discussed the problem with the State Bureau of Traffic Safety. Recommendations included more extensive use of signs and road marks — since put into effect — and, hopefully, the construction of a new bridge downstream, a bridge with "soft" curves to accommodate today's 60-mile-an-hour motorist.

A realignment of the bridge is part of the Township Master Plan and a re-working of the Kingston bridge, complicated by its position on a state highway at the junction of three counties, is also discussed in the Master Plan.

Major improvements in either location are, however, very much of a long-range project.

WHO GOES THERE? A motorist needs a periscope and a wide-angle lens to see what's coming at him from the other side of the Kingston bridge. The span and its abutments have been the scene of many accidents.

FIVE GAIN FELLOWSHIPS

For Research and Study. Five members of the Princeton University faculty have been awarded Procter and Gamble Fund Faculty Fellowships, Dean of the Faculty J. Douglas Brown announced this week. Now in their second year, the fellowships are awarded to young faculty members at a time when normal sabbatical leaves are difficult to obtain and after the recipients have completed their doctoral dissertations.

The five recipients are Robert A. Naumann, assistant professor of Chemistry and Physics; Terry J. Luce, Jr., instructor in the Department of Classics; George Mellor, assistant professor of Mechanical Engineering; C. Neale Ronning, assistant professor of Politics; and Harold M. Schroder, assistant professor of Psychology.

Dr. Naumann has been on the Princeton faculty for six years since receiving his Ph. D here in 1953. He graduated from the University of California in 1949. Dr. Luce, a Hamilton College graduate of 1954, joined the faculty this year on receiving his Ph.D. from Princeton in 1958.

Dr. Mellor received his bachelor, master and doctoral degrees from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1952, 1954 and 1957, respectively. He joined the Princeton faculty in 1957 after working as a technical specialist in compressor design with the Curtiss-Wright Corporation.

Dr. Ronning graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1950 and earned his Ph. D. there in 1953. A teaching assistant at Minnesota until 1951, he joined the Princeton faculty in 1955. Dr. Schroder graduated from the Um-

MORE LIVING ROOM FOR SCIENTISTS: Biologists and geologists will have more room for specimens, equipment and offices when the new George M. Moffett Biology Laboratory and geology extension of Guyot Hall are completed. Ground has already been broken for the five-story multi-million dollar biology addition, and $1,765,000 has been raised for its construction. The Moffet wing will contain over 80 laboratories (an 80 percent increase in present space); seminar rooms, offices, four radio-isotype laboratories, an electron microscope laboratory, greenhouses in which to study plant growth hormones, larger bio-chemical facilities and low temperature rooms. The geology department's new one-story addition will contain eight laboratories and six large collection rooms. Present facilities will be remodeled so that the department will have more library space and a map room. Both extensions join Guyot on the south.

BUILDING UNDER WAY

For Nursing School. Construction of Princeton Hospital's School of Practical Nursing is on schedule, John H. Wallace, Jr., president of the hospital's Board of Trustees announced this week. He said that the school is expected to be completed in time for the entrance of its first class in January of 1960

Although the community drive for capital funds to build the school has raised less than half its goal, the Board of Trustees decided to proceed with the construction in order to avoid any delays necessitated by the threatened steel strike, Mr. Wallace said. The drive is $80,000 short of its $152,000 goal.

The school will occupy an addition to Lambert House, the nurses' residence, and is expected to alleviate the nursing shortage which has plagued the Princeton Hospital in recent years. Applications will be accepted by fall for the one-year course which is open to high school graduates between the ages of 18 and 45.

"Alumni Weekly" Cited

The "Princeton Alumni Weekly" was cited by the American Alumni Council last week as one of the nation's leading alumni publications. An article which appeared in the magazine "Why Johnny Can't Write," by Professor Willard Thorp, chairman of the English Department at Princeton, was accorded special commendation.

The council at its 44th General Conference on Mackinack Island, Mich., also recognized Princeton's Annual Giving campaign with a first place among alumni fund roising efforts. The campaign also was rated first in the field of "parent cultivation."

SCOUT CAMP OPENS

Princeton Troops Attend. Boys from three Princeton Boy Scout troops are in Camp Pahaquarra this week as the camp in Columbia opened its six-week session. The Princeton troops are 43, 56 and 88.

Located on 1500 acres of land near the Delaware Water Gap, the camp has two new campsites laid out last month by Explorer Scouts to accommodate increased enrollment. Navy Seabees of Reserve Unit 4-13 took part in training at the camp last month and completed repairs on the swimming pier which was damaged by ice last winter, and strengthened the water reservoir.

Seventy-two troops of the George Washington Council have enrolled more than 1400 Scouts for the season. Vincent F. Hanft, Assistant Scout Executive of the Council, is directing the camp, with Richard Peinkofer as Assistant Director and Warren B. Gannet as program director. David Paterson of Princeton is a junior staff member.

COUNCIL OFFICERS NAMED

At West Windsor School. In elections held last month at the West Windsor School, Anita Vanderschaaf was named president of the Student Council. Other officers were Karen Day, vice-president; Sheila Holman, secretary; and Lesley Fonger, treasurer.

Members of the council include John Campbell, Kip Coleman, Norman Bergstorm, Joan Davison, Paul Everett, Joseph Luther, Mel Tindall, Walter Sawyer, Jackie Gething, Kathy Deremer, Doris Cooper, Greg Seitz, Roy Smith, Joyce Dancer, Elizabeth Marten and Barry Cooper.

Student of the Month Award went to Anita Vanderschaaf for March, Karen Day; April; Leslie Finger, May; and Mary Dugan, June.

EIGHTEEN WIN HONORS

At West Windsor school. Eighteen students of the West Windsor school have made the honor roll for the period ending June 1959.

The list includes Claudia Cords, Mary Dugan, Etta Goldman, Ronald Wilson, Garry Tindall, Diane Cusumano, John Campbell, Pamela Conover, Jack Bleacher, Kathleen De Remer, Mary Katherine Goldberg, Susan Jany, Jessie Kozachek, Beth Marten, Leonard Gleniczak, Diane Taylor, Kenneth Ward and Wayne Weaver.

Report from THE MAYOR

Forty-Nine Stars. The flagpole at Borough Hall is flying a bright new flag with 49 stars. At 11 a.m. on the Fourth of July, a color guard from Princeton Post 76 of the American Legion participated in a brief but impressive ceremony to retire the 48-star flag and raise the new official banner.

On hand were Post Commander Norman Fowler, immediate past commander Robert Schmidt and County Commander Nathaniel McKee, along with Harold Hinkson, Jr., William Haupt and James E. Whitlow. These men expressed the hope that Princeton residents will increase the number of flags displayed throughout the community. By next Independence Day, the 50-star flag will be official and there will undoubtedly be renewed interest.

Better Than Ever. The enthusiastic crowd at Palmer Stadium on Saturday night seemed to agree than the fireworks display was the best ever. The community is grateful to the Legion for continuing this fine tradition.

A note of appreciation is also due to Bruce McKinney and the Princeton Community Band who entertained the audience in a before-dark concert. An added feature was the all-girl drum and bugle corps from Trenton. Dean Jerio, the fireworks impresario, had an impatient crowd as he waited for darkness to descend, but all was forgiven when the brilliant and often humorous display unfolded.

UNDER THE RED UMBRELLA: When the big umbrella goes up, the children know it's time for a story at one of the playgrounds that are a part of the Princeton Summer Recreation Program. Here, at the Harrison Street playground, Mrs. Lewis H. Sarett holds a group of kindergarten-age children with tales and stories which she tells, without book and without notes. This particular group was an easy one, according to Mrs. Sarett, because all its members were the same age.

A Thought On Safety. Township Police Chief Campbell came up with an interesting suggestion at the July meeting of the Mercer County Traffic Safety Council. The Chief noted that in the fall we traditionally have safety posters pointing out that "School's Open." With more youngsters on bikes and on foot during the long summer days, why not concentrate, he says, on posters that say "School's OUT."

The Borough and Township hope to cooperate on putting the Campbell idea in practice here in Princeton. Meanwhile, we can all be just a bit more careful with our summer driving.

What Motorists Think. At the recent meeting of the Borough Safety Committee, Henry W. Wolpert of Opinion Research Corporation, reported on their study of "What motorists really think about traffic safety!"

The study found a YES answer to the question, "Can mass communications actually motivate people to become safer drivers?" In trying to find the most effective approaches, the project explored some new ideas; and Magistrate Tams, as Chairman of our Safety Committee, has offered the cooperation of the Borough in trying to implement them with the help of the local press.

"Tell It to the Mayor!". The regular weekly open house sessions will be held on Friday, July 10, and Thursday, July 16, from 7 to 10 p.m. at Borough Hall. No appointment is ever necessary for these informal meetings.

Also on last week's calendar: another meeting of the New Jersey Committee of the White House Conference on Children and Youth. The Mayor has been assigned to work with the sub-committee on religious, cultural and environmental influences.

Parks Closed To Camping

The Department of Conservation and Economic Development has announced that Island Beach and Barnegat Lighthouse State Parks are limited to picnicking and the use of the beach. Because of area limitation there are no camping facilities.

The announcement was made because many tourists have been visiting the sites with the expectation of camping there. Many state parks and forests in New Jersey do have campsites available, including High Point State Park, Sussex; Stokes State Forest, Branchville, Jenny Jump State Forest, Hope, Lebanon State Forest, New Lisbon, Bass River State Forest, New Gretna, Belleplain State Forest, Woodbine, Pavin State Park, Elmer, and the Wharton Tract, Egg Harbor City.

The department suggests that reservations be made through the superintendent of the park or forest preferred in order to assure camping space. Additional information about New Jersey's public lands is available in a free pamphlet obtainable by request from State Forests end Parks, New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development, Trenton 25.

ANY TONE IMAGINABLE

On New Music Synthesizer. The RCA electronic music synthesizer, a device capable of producing any imaginable musical tone through electronics, has been installed at Columbia University for use in a joint program of composition and research in electronic music by Columbia and Princeton universities. The project is being conducted under a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation.

The installation was announced jointly by Presidents Grayson Kirk of Columbia and Robert F. Goheen of Princeton and Dr. Elmer W. Engstrom, senior executive vice-president of RCA. The device was developed here at the David Sarnoff Research Center.

The synthesizer project will be headed by a committee of four composers: for Columbia, Otto Luening, professor of music, and Vladimir Ussachevsky, associate professor of music; for Princeton, Roger Sessions, William Shubael Conant professor of music, and Milton Babbitt, associate professor of music.

The machine is being made available by RCA for a nominal fee, including installation and servicing. The initial period is two years, with provision for continued availability of the synthesizer if needed by the project.

The synthesizer was developed by Dr. Harry F. Olson, Herbert Belar and their associates in the acoustical and electromechanical research laboratory, RCA Labs. It is basically a system of electronic circuits capable of originating sounds like those of any known instrument, as well as sounds that can be imagined but cannot be produced by conventional means.

AIDS NEW PROJECT: Milton Babbitt, associate professor of music at Princeton, is one of a committee guiding use of new music synthesizer.

It is operated by a coded paper punched out by the operator, or synthesist, at a keyboard resembling that of a teleprinter. The keys control such characteristics as frequency, octave, loudness, timbre and growth, duration and decay of tones. The output of the machine is recorded one tone at a time onto tape or disc. By blending the separate tones through re-recording any desired instrumental or orchestral effect can be achieved.

A joint statement issued by spokesmen at Princeton and Columbia said "it is appropriate that access to this system should be provided in the first Electronic Music Center in the United States —the first associated anywhere with academic institutions—at a time when the importance of electronic media for the future of musical development . . . (is) becoming widely recognized." Dr. Engstrom expressed RCA's satisfaction at the placing of the device "in an environment where it may be employed extensively by creative people working together in a research program for which the synthesizer is ideally suited."

BALLOON RESEARCH SET

By Telescope Camera. The second in a series of celestial research projects directed by Dr. Martin Schwarzschild of Princeton University will take place this summer as an aid to astronomers studying the surface of the sun.

From a site in the Black Hill region of the Dakotas, a Stratoscope will make several flights some 80,000 feet (15 miles) above the earth's surface. A combination telescope and telecaster, the balloon will photograph an area with a width 1-10 the diameter of the sun.

It will be equipped with a closed circuit television link, with control of the telescope at the ground for remote-control pointing of the tedescope at the sun. In addition, the television camera will be linked optically to a motion picture camera to obtain a continuous record of images that appear in the telescope reflector.

The telescope is raised by balloon to carry it above the earth's atmosphere, which obscures clear visibility of celestial objects. To obtain high-resolution photographs of the sky, it is necessary to send telescopes above the tropopause, a turbulent layer at about 40,000 feet that is a major area of interference.

Such atmospheric interference causes fluctuations in refractions of light from the sky, resulting in "twinkling" of stars and other manifestations of poor visibility. For example, under the best atmospheric conditions, the 200-inch telescope at Mt. Palomar can rarely distinguish between two points on the moon's surface less than 1800 ft apart, while it could distinguish between points only 120 feet apart if it did not have to "look" through the earth's atmosphere.

Princeton personnel participating includes Dr. John Bahng, Dr. Robert Danielson, Dr. John B. Rogerson, Jr., Lewis E. Anthony and George W. M. Collins 2d. FOOTBALL ISN'T DEAD

Rutgers Already Stalking Tiger. The unusually close pennant races in both major leagues, tennis at Wimbledon and the site of the return Patterson-Johansson bout may be getting all the headlince in the sports pages of daily newspapers, but another contest of interest to thousands in New Jersey is waiting in the wings. Even in mid-July, the late September football game between Rutgers and Princeton occasionally breaks into print.

For the second year in a row, the Scarlet is generally letting it be known that it expects to open its season with a victory in Palmer Stadium. As early as the winter of 1958, John Stiegman, who went from the Princeton campus to pick up the head coaching reins in New Brunswick, was telling friends in both communities that he was going to beat the Tigers. The score last October: Rutgers 28, Princeton 0.

A number of the top players who were largely responsible for the Scarlet's good year have graduated, primarily All-American halfback Bill Austin. But Rutgers has other good backs returning to operate behind a promising line, and optimism on the banks of the Raritan has not lessened.

"We can do it again," Stegman thinks, and his publicity man, Les Unger, is following the party line. Here and there, the drums that lure big crowds to an athletic event are already rolling.

Confidence an Asset. The viewpoint being aired in New Brunswick and around New Jersey hinterlands is refreshing. For years — even when the Scarlet had one of its better teams — Harvey Harman used to moan about what was going to happen to him in the Stadium.

"We'll be there for the kickoff," he'd say, "but we'll be lucky to be around at the finish." Rutgers fans, accustomed to losing to Princeton, stayed away from this natural intra-state rivalry by the thousands.

What Harman's printed funeral orations did to the morale of his teams is easy to imagine. It is one of the reasons why the neighboring university went 12 long seasons without a victory over the opponent it most likes to defeat.

As many a Rutgers graduate will tell you, the season begins with the Princeton game and, in the event of defeat, ends with the Princeton game. The Tigers' alignment with the Ivy League dictates an early meeting with the New Brunswick eleven — a circumstance that actually works against the best interests of both teams.

With Rutgers on the ascendancy, the Scarlet will become an increasingly tough opening day foe for Princeton. For example, the Orange and Black figures to have a team that will again battle down to the wire in the Ivy race, but there is no clear indication that it can make up the four-touchdown deficit that separated the teams last year. If the Tigers manage to do so, the Scarlet will have a real job picking up the pieces.

Football Preview Coming

The first of four articles presented each summer by Town Topics as a preview of Princeton's football prospects will appear in next week's issue.

The series will begin with a look at the gaps caused by graduation from the team that won the runner-up spot in the 1958 Ivy League race. An evluation of sophomore strength will follow, with the third article a report on the pre-Blairstown depth chart—the Tigers' strength at each position before practice starts September 1. The series will conclude with an evaluation of Princeton's 1959 opponents and an estimate of how the Ivy League race will develop this season.

There is good reason for Stegman's confidence, despite the loss of Austin and other key personnel.

WATER BUTTERFLIES: The waters of Lake Carnegie are home port for these Penguins, members of the Carnegie Sailing Club. The little boats often leave Princeton to race at Barnegat, Red Bank or on various lakes near Princeton.

CAPTAIN AND CREW: Penguin dinghies have a weight allowance of 275 pounds and most men carry a crew to serve as ballast and to serve, generally. Thomas Huntington, 73 Allison Road, has the invaluable assistance of Chris "Sausauhto" Allen, 9, (stern view) son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Allen, 735 Prospect.

He can present a largely veteran line that will average 210 pounds and may well have an advantage of as much as ten pounds to the man on the Tigers. The former Princeton coach has been quoted as labelling his captain, 210-lb., 6-3 Bob Simms, as good as any end in the country.

Rutgers' starting backfield graduated intact, but the reserves saw considerable action and the sophomores will present a couple of standouts who may see early duty. Like Princeton, the Scarlet does without spring practice — a Princeton requirement as long as the Ivy League ban continues — but there's no prohibition on off-season tub-thumping. Rutgers is clearly looking ahead to the afternoon of Saturday, September 26, and its open-faced confidence should draw one of the biggest first day crowds in Stadium history.

SAILS IN THE WIND

Inland Sailors Enjoy Sport. It's a breezy Sunday afternoon and one by one, the Penguins begin to gather on the shore of Lake Carnegie for a series of races. Six, eight, maybe as many as 20 of the little boats break out their white sails and begin to maneuver around the dock of the boathouse that stands on the shore where Harry's Brook flows into the lake.

The boats belong to members of the Carnegie Sailing Club, formed about three years ago. Today, about 40 sailors belong to the group and some 28 boats comprise the Carnegie fleet.

Penguins are single sail dinghies, 11 feet 5 inches long with a beam of 4 feet 8 inches. They carry 72 square feet of sail and weight about 200 pounds. They have arc bottoms and are extremely sensitive to the sailor's touch, which means that they can streak up to the dock and come to a skidding, screeching stop half an inch from the wood.

Because of their small size and easy maneuverability, they are particularly well-suited to Lake Carnegie which is not the world's largest yacht basin. Peter Lauck, commodore of the fleet, says, "The Penguin is an exciting boat to sail because it can turn in such small circles. You have to think fast and be prepared to capsize. I would say that if you can handle a Penguin, you can handle a cup defender."

Races are, therefore, a test of the sailor's skill and not a test of the boat. Penguin racing rules are complicated and profuse and infringements are common.

For example, the man on the starboard tack has the right of way and it's against the rules to go between him and the marker in a race. But somehow this happens time and again.

WHO'S THE WINNER? At this writing, the Spring Championship of the Carnegie Sailing Club had not yet been decided but it seemed to be swinging between Thomas Huntington, Peter Lauck (Commodore of the Club), T. H. Kelly, Clay Story and Walter Jefferson. Fleet Champion is Clay Story. Championships are decided after a complex juggling of points. The Club, now completing its spring races, will hold a Touchdown Regatta in the fall.

Harry Kahny
Softball Pitcher

If more complete statistics for softball were kept, it would be clear by this time that there have been very few stars in the history of the Princeton Community Softball League as brightly consistent as Harry Kahny, the Italian-American Sportsmen's Club's ace lefthander. Kahny, who has pitched all the Sportsmen's 98 innings so far this year, sports a 12-2 record, including five shutouts.

Now 25, he is in his seventh season with the softball league. He pitches two games a week for the Sportsmen, another pair for Peppy's Tavern in the Trenton League (his record there: 3-0) and spends another night coaching a team in the Police Youth Program Little League. The young Borough patrolman, who is married and has a 4-year-old boy of his own, says working with youngsters is his favorite activity.

"That's going to be my only danger for softball," he said. "I like that better than playing. If I have a team next year and if the Little League starts playing two nights a week instead of one, as they're planning, I may have to give up playing, at least for one of the two teams."

Harry has been playing community softball since he graduated from the Midget and Junior hardball leagues. "I like softball better than hardball," he said. "It's much faster than hardball, at least in Princeton. There's a lot of competition and it's about the only recreation the adults have."

The toughest game of his career, Harry said, was an encounter with Conerno's last year, when he pitched a perfect game for seven innings and then was beaten, 1-0, in the eighth. Mack Brockington, the winning pitcher, also hurled a no-hitter for seven frames in that contest.

Harry has been beaten twice this year by Pete and Mike's, his only two losses, by scores of 4-3 and 3-1. He lists the 4-3 defeat as his hardest game this season "because it was the first time I was behind all year." The most consistently potent batters he faces, Harry feels, are Lou DeMeglio of Sannino's and Brockington.

At Princeton High School, from which he was graduated in 1952, Kahny took part in football and track and was an All-County choice in basketball. He has been a member of the All-Star softball team for the past four years. With the record he has compiled so far this season, he will no doubt be a shoo-in for a fifth time when the All-Star balloting is held at the end of the season.

sail very close together in the small confines of Lake Carnegie and sometimes they pile up. In a recent race, three or four banged and their stays got tangled and there was no racing for quite a while.

Each member owns a rule book and spends his shore leave studying the rules and trying to untangle them—sometimes as tricky a process as untangling the stays.

"Many of the fouls are unintentional," says Commodore Lauck. "In erratic winds, especially, you can't tell what will happen. As a rule, we don't race when the wind is 25 m.p.h. or over, but even on a good day, the wind can shift suddenly, or you can be caught in a puff that doesn't strike anybody else in the race, and before you know it you've fouled."

Carnegie is not a strict club, as many are; the members sail for the fun of it and although discussions are heated, they are not out to go beyond a "You fouled me!" and a fast thumbing of the rule book when the race is over.

The best wind is a south wind, and in a pleasantly stiff southern breeze the boats skim the water like water-bugs. Most of the Carnegie sailors are men, although women are often taken on as crew. The club has two spring and two fall championships, concluding the spring season on June 30 and starting up again in the fall for a Touchdown Regatta held on the mornings of football Saturdays.

Competitions Are Close. Clay Story of Lawrenceville won the Fleet Championship three years in a row and he's known as a hard man to beat. To be eligible for the trophy—usually a beer mug, or similar offering—a sailor must compete in 70 per cent of the races and the championship is awarded on the basis of points accumulated. Competition is very close; a Penguin can be first in one race, then seventh or eighth in the next, and anyone who comes in third for four or five races is good indeed.

Capsizing is frequent and not a cause for chagrin.

"Lake Carnegie isn't very deep," says Walter Jefferson, one of the Penguin sailors. "In most places you can stand up, but it always seems to be over my head whenever I capsize!"

In a heavy wind, two Penguins can brush each other and one will plow under before the quick-witted sailor can give an order to his one-man crew.

Weight is an essential in a Penguin. One sailor in a race took along his son—too light. Put in a bag of fertilizer for ballast—too light. He ended up with his son, the fertilizer and a pile of rocks.

SIX 'STUDENT ATHLETES' Captains Win Academic Honors. Captains of six Princeton teams exemplified the Ivy League ideal of the "student athlete" by winning departmental academic honors as they completed their Princeton careers. In addition, 19 other lettermen achieved similar classroom recognition.

The six captains were Johnny Heyd, lacrosse captain and football halfback, an honors graduate in religion; Mo Cheston, hockey captain and lacrosse player, an honors graduate in economics; Bob Manning, track captain (pole vault and javelin, high honors in geology; Jim Proctor, swimming captain, honors in politics; Bill Oelman, 150-lb. football captain, honors in politics; and Mike Kelley, 150-lb. crew captain, high honors in the Special Program in the Humanities. In addition, Heyd, Cheston, Manning, Oelman and Kelly all won trophies emblematic of outstanding contribution in their respective sports.

Of the other 19 lettermen who excelled academically, two were among the few athletes good enough to win varsity rating in two sports. Herm Belz won honors in history and Joe Burns in engineering. Both played basketball and both were pitchers on the Tiger baseball team.

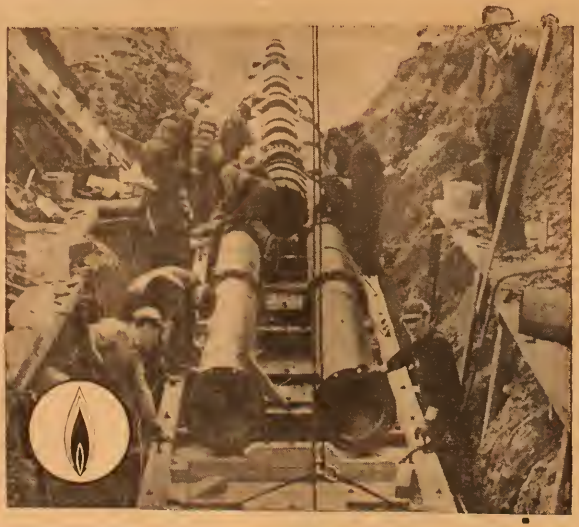
Sleigh Ride for a Gas Pipe



Here is one way Gas service is extended across a body of water: Gas pipes are secured on to wooden "sleds" . . . the sleds are pushed into the water . . . lengths of pipe are lined up . . . joined . . . and then the entire line is submerged.

Sound easy? It is when you know how. And it's the "know-how" that makes your Gas service so dependable!

INSTITUTE IN 2nd WEEK

At Princeton Seminary. A summer refresher course for ministers from all sections of the nation enters its second week Monday, featuring classes for the participants and a special convocation address Tuesday evening by the Rev. Robert J. McCracken, minister of Riverside Church, New York City.

Each morning, a Bible hour will be led by the Rev. D. O. Calvin Thomas, minister of the Pembroke Dock Church in Wales, whose topic will be "The Church: Treasure in Earthen Vessels." The daily program will also include elective courses convocations and evening services.

The ministers can choose from three courses in each of two morning classes. For the first hour the subjects will be "Reconciliation in Christ and in His Church," "Role Conflicts in the Ministry," and a clinic in sermon delivery. During the second hour, classes in "Christianity and Human Relationships," "The Minister as Interpreter," and the sermon delivery clinic are offered.

The Rev. Raymond I. Lindquist, minister of the First Presbyterian Church in Hollywood, Calif., will hold a daily convocation devoted to "The Preacher as Pulpit Pastor" from 11:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. Evening services on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be conducted by the Rev. James W. Clarke, the Rev. McCracken and the Rev. Mr. Thomas.

Members of the faculty for the Institute include the Rev. W. J. Beeners, Professor of Speech at the Princeton Theological Seminary, the Rev. Samuel W. Blizzard, Professor of Christianity and Society at the Princeton Seminary; and the Rev. Kenneth J. Froeman, Professor of Doctrinal Theology at the Louisville Presbyterian Seminary.

Also the Rev. A. Leonard Griffith, minister of the Chalmers United Church, Ottawa, Canada; the Rev. Norman V. Hope, professor of Church History and chairman of that department at Princeton Seminary; the Rev. William B. Martin, Congregational minister of Edinburgh, Scotland; the Rev. Walter Lane Moore, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Meridian, Miss.; the Rev. William B. Oglesby, Jr., professor of pastoral counseling at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va.; the Rev. Thomas F. Torrance, professor of Christian Dogmatics, Edinburgh, Scotland; and the Rev. Herman L. Turner, pastor of Covenant Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, Georgia.

"HE WAS ONCE A LITTLE BOY LIKE YOU:" At the Calvary Baptist summer Bible school, kindergarten children learn about the life of Jesus from stories and pictures. The Rev. William Malcomson, asked this group of boys and girls, "Does anybody know where Jesus lived?" and one four-year-old, too young to understand the difference between time and place, replied, "About 70 years ago."

The first week of the Institute offered a similar program with courses given in "Alternatives in Theology," and "Pastoral Counseling," in addition to others also given the second week. The Rev. Mr. Griffith conducted the daily convocation on "The Roman Letter Today," and the Rev. Mr. Moore led the Bible hour of "Ephesians."

The Rev. Ralph W. Sockman, minister of Christ Church, Methodist, New York, delivered the opening address and led the Monday evening service. The Rev. Mr. Hope, the Rev. Mr. Foreman and the Rev. Mr. Moore were to conduct the mid-week services. Communion will be held Friday.

The funeral was held in Trenton with requiem high mass celebrated at the Holy Trinity Ukrainian Orthodox Church in Trenton. Interment was in the parish cemetery.

PAC STARTS ROLLING

Wins Two in One Day. After a start marred by two ties and a pair of setbacks, the Princeton Athletic Club began its serious bid for honors in the Tri-County League with a pair of victories. South Brunswick was edged twice Tuesday night by one-run margins, first in a delayed contest that was completed in an extra frame and then in a regulation game.

PAC will play two home games this week. League-leading Montgomery will be at the Princeton High School diamond Thursday at 6:15 and South Brunswick returns Friday at the same hour.

Last week, Monigomery played host to the Princetonians and blanked them, 8-0, on the fine pitching of southpaw Bill Brogan. Friday night saw the South Brunswick game end in a 7-7 tie, when a dispute arose as darkness was falling over the need of a pinch-hitter to report to the umpire before he stepped up to the plate.

Commissioner B. E. Bergesen Jr. ruled that a batter could enter the game without such formality, disallowing a PAC protest. However, the rhubarb erased the daylight, and the game was continued on Tuesday, from a 7-7 tie.

Billy Moore, diminutive third baseman, powered a long home run to left center in the first extra inning to break up the game. Manager Pete Cook, hurling in relief, picked up the win.

Another long blow broke up a tie in the regular game which followed. A 3-3 tie existed and twilight was fading fast when the PAC got two on with two-out Bruce Sandvick, who had also proved a defensive standout, hammered the ball far over the left fielder's head to give the locals a 4-3 triumph.

Dick Borger with three hits and Sandvick and Moore with two apiece paced the victors' attack. In the earlier three-run inning, Pete Cook, brother John and Jack Hawkins all crossed the plate.

SPORTSMEN WIN TWO

Behind Kahny. Southpaw Harry Kahny hurled his 13th victory in 15 starts Tuesday night to pace the Sportsmen to a 5-4 triumph over Pete and Mike's at Poe Field. The Sportsmen blanked Sannino's, 3-0, behind Kahny on Thursday.

The winning run in Tuesday's Sportsmen victory was scored on a homer by Sam Nini. In the Sannino game, Bob Cook homered in the third with two on to account for all three Sportsmen tallies.

In other Princeton Community Softball League action, Teague and Burton's, formerly Cenerino's, defeated Pete and Mike's, 4-2, on Thursday and bowed to Sannino's, 7-5, on Tuesday. Sannino's scored three runs in the second inning, two in the fifth and one each in the sixth and seventh to seal the victory.

The league standings:

	W	L	Pct.
Sportsmen	13	2	.867
Sannino's	6	6	.500
Teague & Burton	4	8	.333
Pete & Mike's	4	11	.267

TOPICS EDGES ETS

Emma Tufano Homers. Emma Tufano smashed a three-run homer with two out in the seventh inning to pace Town Topics to an 11-10 victory over ETS at Goldie Field last Wednesday. The victors trailed, 10-8, when Miss Tufano's hit came.

In other Girls' Softball League action, Thorne's defeated Clarksville Diner, 9-8, at Bedford Field. Bee Baker, pitching for the victories, gave up nine hits while her teammates were pounding out 13.

Thorne's posted one run in the first frame, four in the second and two each in the fifth and seventh. It was the league-leaders first defeat.

The standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Clarksville Diner	6	1	.857
Thorne's	3	4	.429
Town Topics	3	4	.429
ETS	2	5	.286

TWO GAMES LISTED

For Post 76. Princeton Post 76 was scheduled to play two games this week in the Mercer County American Legion League, against Lambertville Post 120 away on Wednesday and Trenton Post 93 at University Field Saturday. The Saturday contest will begin at 1:45. Post 76, with a 1-5 record, is in last place in the league.

Hamilton Post 31 scored 15 runs in the first inning and went on to rout the Princetonians, 24-4, in Trenton last Saturday. Post 31 found three Princeton hurlers for 17 hits, 13 walks and five wild pitches. Post 76's prospects were further weakened by eight errors and seven passed balls.

After scoring two runs in the second frame, Hamilton tallied five in the fifth and two in the sixth to round out its scoring. Nineteen Hamilton batters were up in the first inning barrage, while eleven reached he plate in the fifth.

The league standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Trenton Post 93	7	2	.778
Hightstown Post 148	7	3	.700
Hamilton Post 31	6	4	.600
Ewing Post 311	5	5	.500

LITTLE LEAGUE OPENS

Under PBA Guidance. The Italian-American Sportsmen and Engine Company No. 3 opened the little league season with victories over Engine Company No. 3 and American Legion Post 78, respectively. The little league, organized by the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, will be in action every Wednesday night until playoffs in September.

Dick Murray led the 1 both in the field and at bat by twirling a shutout over Post 78 and hitting for the cycle. He fanned 14 in gaining he 8-0 victory and collected a single, double, triple and home run in his own support. The Italian-American Sportsmen drubbed Engine Company No. 1, 12-8, in ther opener. The Fraternal Order of Eagles drew a bye.

The teams play on fields at the Princeton Country Day School, Mercer Street, Princeton High School and Marquand Park.

JUNIOR LOOP TO OPEN

First Game Thursday. Nassau Oil will face Bowers Construction at 8:30 on Thursday at Valley Road School field in the season-opening game in the Princeton Junior Baseball League. The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association and Matthews Construction will play at 6:30 on Friday at Valley Road.

Thursday's game will mark the start of the league's 13th season. It was begun in 1947 by C. Edward Christian, then as now Princeton's summer playground supervisor, with the help of Michael C. Replogle. Others who have been active in the league's management over the years have been Jess Willard and B. E. Bergesen Jr., the commissioner.

The league is sponsored by the Playgrounds Committee and the YMCA. Team managers include Bob Sinkler, Jack Petrone, Ed Swinnerton and Jim Wheeler. Walt Lewis and Thomas Sterenberg will be assistant managers.

The combined Matthews-PBA squad defeated Bowers-Nassau Oil, 7-5, in the All-League game on the high school field Saturday. Walt Lewis and Peter Smyth managed the teams. Winning pitcher was Gilbert Fisher, who went the route for Matthews-PBA, while Bob Swinnerton and Dennis Smith hurled for the losers.

The fielding play of the day was Russ Perone's cannon-like throw from center field to home plate, picking off Silas Massey in an attempt to score from second on a single. The catcher who made the out, Charles Pemberton, was tagged later by catcher Massey on an attempted steal of home.

THE LITTLE GALLERY is exceedingly regretful about last week's ad about how we're going to be closed on Saturday instead of Monday any more. July 4 we were closed, a Saturday, but not July 2, which was not a Monday, as we thought was cleared up in last week's ad. But anyway, it's not July 1 or 4 any more, so all that doesn't matter, but it is July and August is coming up pretty soon, during which, like we said, Mondays we will be open instead of Saturdays, which we were closed before July. Well, this should clarify everything, but if it doesn't, Wednesdays we're always open all year long, except when we're on vacation, which will be some time in August, so come in then, unless you're out of town.

WELDWOOD®
Prefinished PLANKWELD®
. . . easiest to install and care for

Modestly-priced Plankweld offers you the beautiful Weldwood hardwoods, factory-finished (with genuine lacquer) for a lifetime of lasting beauty.

Easiest To Install—An ingeniously designed tongue and groove system makes Plankweld Panels go up in record time! All nailing is invisible . . . through simple metal clips which hold the edge-grooved panels to the studs. Panel tongues are deep-toned—the completed joint forms smartly accentuated v-grooves.

Easy To Handle—Plank-size panels are 16¼" wide to fit on studs, and are 6', 7' and 8' long—9' and 10' long in some woods.
